

For many useful information and links, go to the Students page of the Department of Education and Early Childhood Development website

<http://www.education.vic.gov.au/students/default.htm>

201
Literacy and maths
tips to help your child

A new publication for parents is available on the DEECD website. Have a look if you have not already done so ...

<http://www.education.vic.gov.au/aboutschool/curriculum/litnumbooktrans.htm>

Raising Children Network has expanded to include information, tools and resources for parents of students in the pre-teen and early teen years. We're now pleased to announce that on 17 May 2011, the Hon. Jenny Macklin MP, Minister for Families, Housing, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs (FaHCSIA), officially launched the teens section of the Raising Children Network site. This Australian Government-supported website now contains a range of resources to help parents of teens make informed choices on a variety of topics, including teen mental health, cyberbullying, social media, handling disrespectful or risky behaviour and puberty. And, as all content is quality assured, school professionals can be assured they are referring their students' parents to credible, well-researched information.

<http://raisingchildren.net.au/>
